23 January 1959

MEMORANDUM FOR: Brigadier General Richard Collins
Director of Plans, Programs and Security

SUBJECT: Improvement of Internal Security of Latin America against Communist Penetration and Subversion (C)

1. In the light of the increased Communist attention to Latin America and the increasing evidence of Communist activity in the area, it is important, in our national interest, that we endeavor to strengthen the security of the area against Communist operations. In view of the wide influence and importance of the local armies in security, intelligence, and police functions in Latin America, and the close U. S. Army association therewith, it would appear incumbent upon the United States Army to take the initiative in establishing measures within the military forces in these countries to increase the effectiveness of their operations against Communist penetration and subversion. It is, of course, patently evident that anti-Communist measures in the Western Hemisphere must be initiated on an hemispheric basis and not with a country-by-country approach.

2. As the Director in OACSI for security matters, I desire that you develop a comprehensive program to assist appropriate agencies in Latin America to establish an effective internal security against Communist penetration and subversion.

3. While primary emphasis should be given to the training and strengthening of Army elements in counterintelligence and internal security, it is important that your program be developed on a joint concept to include Army, Navy, and Air Force as well as police and secret police involvement which necessitates your coordination with our own appropriate national agencies having cognizance thereof.

4. Implementation of your Latin American Security Program should be launched through the mechanism of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and should be introduced therein by the Army per agreement in the USIB meeting 20 January 1959. Department of State, CIA and FBI should be kept informed in detail of our planning and actions in this field.

5. In the development of your program, I desire that you give consideration to the following.

a. Early establishment of a training capability to insure thorough, effective training of the maximum feasible number of Latin American personnel by competent and expert instructors qualified to teach in the required languages and possessing real understanding of Latin American mentalities.

b. The early establishment of a DA FAST Program for Latin America.

c. Immediate establishment of a mechanism as well as the development of inducement for the appropriate exchange of information, between all the countries of the Western Hemisphere, on Communist personalities, techniques, plans, objectives, and operations in Latin America.

d. Measures to induce cohesive and concerted effort by all Latin American countries against the common enemy of the Communist threat in the field of internal security. In this connection I invite your attention to the possible advantage of involving the IADB in the Latin American security program.

e. The necessity for effective interception and monitoring of Communist communications into and within Latin America.
